COURSE DESCRIPTION

Officer Survival-“Treatment Under Fire” was designed to provide the officer with the techniques and procedures necessary to provide “immediate” life saving medical care to officers and team members injured in the line of duty, while operating in a tactical environment. When EMT’s and Paramedics can’t enter a scene where officers are still engaged in a fire fight, this course provides your officers with the knowledge, skills, and techniques needed to give the downed officer a fighting chance at survival.

Topics Include:

- History and Evolution of TC3(Tactical Combat Casualty Care)
- Treat and Prevent the Three Leading Causes of Death on the Battlefield(Streets)
- Wound Ballistics
- Blast Injuries
- Firearm Projectiles
- Human Anatomy
- Understanding Wound Pathology and How TC3 Works
- Care Under Fire(Limitations, Tactics, SABA, Hemorrhage Control)
- ABC’s of Tactical Field Care
- Applying Chest Seals/Hemostatic Agents
- CASEVAC-Methods
- Communication and Platforms
- Mass Casualties and Triage
- Use of a Litter
- Practical Exercises Utilizing Actual Patients in a Tactical Environment with Simulated Injuries

INSTRUCTIONAL GOAL

The goal of this course is to enable officers to confront and treat life threatening injuries they may encounter in tactical environments. This course is recognized by the American College of Surgeons and the National Association of EMT's.

INSTRUCTOR: Aaron Kapinski is currently teaching Combat and Active Scene Medical Care based on real world experience. He is a certified Combat/ Trauma Care Instructor as well as a Defensive Tactics Instructor. Aaron is a member of the American Heart Association and the Surgical First Assistant Association. Aaron served in the United States Air Force where he used his medical knowledge and expertise in the battlefield to help save lives. After his military service, Aaron earned a degree in Surgical Science and currently works as a Tissue Recovery Specialist in addition to teaching law enforcement how to survive under fire when injured using the skills and techniques of immediate lifesaving medical care. Aaron has also served as a Medical Officer for the past four years in the South Carolina State Guard as well as serving as an Urban Casualty Care Response Coordinator, and a FEMA Casualty First Responder.
